PABLO CERVANTES – Composer

Pablo is one of Spain's leading film composers and is now breaking into the international markets. He has recently completed two US movies – The Fortune Theory, directed by Aldo Filiberto for Blackboard Pictures and Buffalo 8 Productions and A Little Push, a short, directed by Andrés Moret Urdampilleta. His 2012 Spanish films include Holmes & Watson: Madrid Days, directed by José Luis Garci and Los Niños Salvajes, directed by Patricia Ferreira, for which Pablo has already won two major soundtrack music awards.

In 2011 he scored Camera Obscura and Kenu, for Basque Films and Jaleo Films; Rocio Dural: Volver a Vertu, a 2-part biopic about one of Spain's legendary singers who recently died from cancer; two documentaries about the Spanish Civil war, 30 Years of Darkness and Deported 1969; an historical adventure series for Globomedia, El Corazón Del Océano; and finally a 13-part series Luna: El Misterio De Calenda for the same company.

He was encouraged by the Oscar winning writer/director José Luis Garci who gave him his first major commission to score Canal + España's You're The One, for which Pablo's score earned a CEC Award nomination and gave him instant recognition among Spain's leading filmmakers.

That same year he won Best Film Soundtrack at the Spanish Film Festival for Cesar Martinez Herrada's film Everything in Place for Caligari Films. In 2004 he was Nominated for a GOYA for Best Original Score for his work on Hotel Danubio, written and directed by Antonio Giménez Rico for Nickel Odeon.

He has scored a further five films for José Luis Garci – Story of a Kiss for Canal + España; Tiovivo C 1950 for Nickel Odeon; Ninette, also Nickel Odeon, for which he was again Nominated for a GOYA and a Film Critics Award; Sunday Light and Sangre de Mayo, both of which were nominated for the Film Critics Awards and both made by Nickel Odeon.

In 2008 Pablo again worked with Antonio Giménez Rico on El Libro de las Aguas, for Saguel Films. His other films include La Banda en la Isla de la Magia, directed by Gonzalo Crespo for Canal Sur; Everything In Place, directed by César Martínez Herrada for Caligari Films, which won Best Soundtrack at the Spanish Cinema Festival; Imaginario, directed by Pablo Cantos for Dexiderius Productions; My Hero, directed by Antonio Cuadri for Caligari Films; Violetas directed by Rafa Montesinos

He has also scored a number of major Spanish tv dramas, as well as international documentaries and more than 10 shorts with up and coming directors and producers. His studio is based in his home city of Seville. He records much of his music in Spain but has also worked in Bratislava and other European recording centres.
